Get Well Soon— Without Antibiotics

Common illnesses such as coughs and colds can often be treated without encouraging antibiotic resistance by drinking plenty of fluids and getting lots of rest. Colds can last about two weeks and may end with a cough. If your cold lasts more than three weeks, or you become breathless or have chest pains, it is important that you see your Doctor.

All colds and most coughs and sore throats are caused by viruses—which antibiotics will not work against. Bacteria can adapt and find ways to survive the effects of an antibiotic, so the more often we use it the more likely we will become resistant—this will lessen its effectiveness in the future.

Your GP will only prescribe antibiotics when you need them. By not asking for antibiotics unnecessarily, they are more likely to work when you really need them to.

Friends and Family

92% of patients who responded to the Friends and Family survey last month would be either extremely likely or likely to recommend our practice to friends and family if they needed similar care or treatment

Thank you for participating in this survey.

Keeping Healthy

Why not take the healthy option and walk or cycle to your routine appointment at the Health Centre?
